

About Ledmac Ltd UK

Ledmac is a London based education services company founded by a group of Sloan Fellows from London Business School, specialising in building & supporting incubators, entrepreneurship education and social entrepreneurship know-how.

LSEDC Mission & Scope

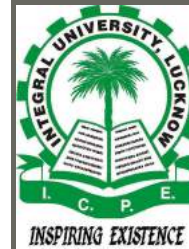

Our mission is to be the pioneer entity that supports social change and economic reform by enabling independent economic activity for individuals as well as groups.

LSEDC will achieve this by:

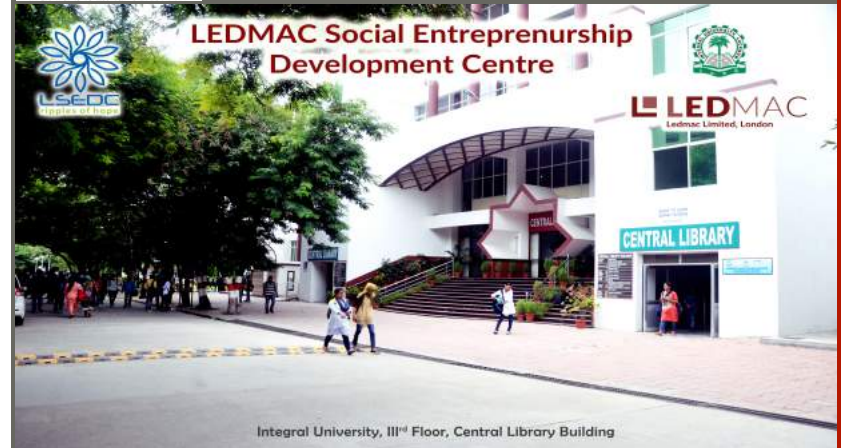

- Providing holistic development and grooming of existing and potential leadership in social entrepreneurship sphere through partnership with our hosts Integral University. The jointly developed and collaboratively delivered training programs and other relevant specialisations would be offered to current students at the university and to prospective entrepreneurs. These world class training programs combined with practical insights about the social impact will ensure that entrepreneurial endeavours can make a long lasting and highly relevant impact on society.
- Cultivating a culture of research through collection and management of data from primary sources as LSEDC's direct work on live projects. As a preliminary step, LSEDC has adopted a village under its aegis and will be working on solving some of the toughest challenges faced by the residents there.
- Facilitating within the local community as well as mobilising our international network of dependable individuals and groups involved in similar social entrepreneurship endeavours.

We work with members of the global social entrepreneurship fraternity with whom we share our resources, local experience and expertise for:

- Research Projects
- Data Collection
- Immersion Programmes for students and/or faculty members
- Other areas of mutual interest
