Report on Orientation Programme- Deeksharambh 2026

Visit of Newly Admitted Students to the Centre for Career Guidance & Development (CCG&D)

As part of Deeksharambh–2026 (Orientation/Student Induction Programme) held from 27th July to 31st July 2026, the Centre for Career Guidance & Development (CCG&D), Integral University, organized orientation visits for newly admitted students. The students from the Faculty of Engineering (B.Tech.), Physiotherapy, Mass Communication, Computer Application, Education, Law, Commerce, Management, Humanities and Architecture, accompanied by their respective faculty members, visited the CCG&D hall to gain an understanding of the University's career guidance and placement support system.

The students were warmly welcomed by Dr. Zishan Raza Khan (Director-CCG&D), along with all the team members. Dr. Khan introduced the students to the objectives and key functions of CCG&D and explained the various initiatives undertaken by the Centre to enhance students' employability. He informed the students that Career Guidance Sessions are an integral part of the academic curriculum, comprising Soft Skills and Aptitude Training classes, which are conducted regularly to develop communication skills, logical reasoning, quantitative aptitude, problem-solving ability, interview skills, and overall professional personality. He further highlighted the Centre's role in organizing mock interview sessions, internships, industry interactions, and campus recruitment drives to prepare students for successful careers.

During the interactive session, Dr. Khan motivated the students to remain dedicated to their academic studies while continuously improving their technical knowledge, communication skills, confidence, and overall personality. He emphasized that regular participation in CCG&D activities from the first year would help students become industry-ready and increase their chances of securing placements in the companies of their choice. He also encouraged students to maintain discipline, develop a positive attitude, and make the best use of the opportunities provided by the University.

The members of the CCG&D team also interacted with students from different branches and answered their queries regarding placements, internships, career planning, and industry expectations. They guided students on how to prepare themselves from the beginning of their academic programme so that they can achieve their career goals. The faculty members accompanying the students appreciated the initiative, as it provided valuable awareness about career development and placement opportunities available at the University.

The visit concluded with an engaging interaction and group photographs with the CCG&D team. The orientation sessions successfully familiarized the newly admitted students with the support offered by CCG&D and inspired them to actively participate in career development activities throughout their academic journey. The programme reflected Integral University's commitment to preparing students for successful professional careers through continuous guidance, training, and industry-oriented learning.
