The 60 minutes webinar was themed around the most relevant topic facing economies today – JOBS. Three eminent panelists having a diverse range of experience in their fields touched upon the key aspects of JOBS FOR THE NEXT FIVE YEARS and deliberated on New emerging technologies, new ways of hiring, skills required for new age jobs and the role of a University in this transition.

Mr. Ashish Bhalla, Global Corporate Recruitments Head & Campus Relations, HCL Technologies Ltd. deliberated on the New emerging Technologies and the new ways of hiring, he talked about the fast pace at which the Technology and the IT industry is redefining itself. This is also opening up tremendous growth opportunities for youngsters. Mr. Ashish said that apart from Domain skills and Digital skills, Self-discipline and Behavioral competencies will be the focus areas for HR teams, while selecting the candidates for the next 5 years.

Mr. Rajesh Kumar, Co-founder & CEO, FACE (a premier up-skilling organization) also expressed his views in the webinar. He clearly stated that though Digital skills are the new normal but the ability to adapt as well as work readiness are going to be the most sought after skills going forward. He emphasized that Functional skills based on digital literacy are going to be the mandatory requirement across the board. Also fast searching skills will be highly critical in the coming future. Mr. Rajesh, an IIM Kozhikode Alumnus highlighted that the resilient life skills and the ability to find the next opportunity in an optimistic way will be the key going forward. These will only come with curiosity and sincerity.

Dr. Syed Nadeem Akhtar, Pro-Chancellor Integral University, Lucknow (India), discussed the Role of Universities in this Transition. He said there should not be a rush for online or digital education, as it will not replace classroom education any time soon, but will certainly enhance and compliment it. Digitalization is now pervasive. He drew special attention that now the Universities must become platforms of facilitation and to be Centers of enablement. Dr. Nadeem emphasized on the evolving aspirations and engrained discipline which shall be essential requirements in the coming days. He further said that continuous learning will be the key for sustenance because somewhere someone is already way ahead of us.

Dr. Nilanjan Mukherji, Director - Center for Career Guidance and Development (CCG&D) Integral University, Lucknow (India) conducted the event as the moderator. In his summing up statement Dr. Nilanjan said the future is already here. We have to embrace it, adapt to its requirements and continuously learn. He thanked all the panelists and participants in making this a learning and enriching experience.

Adapt ...Learn ....Succeed is going to be the new mantra.
