Brief Report of Guest Lecture (Online)on

“Understanding The Relationship between Sociology and Literature” The Department of Humanities & Social Sciences organized a Guest Lecture entitled “Understanding The Relationship between Sociology and Literature”. The lecture was delivered by Dr. Irfanullah Farooqui, Senior Visiting Fellow, Centre for the Studies of Plural Societies, New Delhi, India. The lecture truly fulfilled the purpose of knowledge and developing a deeper understanding about the relationship between Sociology and Literature among our students and faculty members. Dr. Irfanullah Farooqui delivered a very enlightening lecture on the given theme. After the lecture, the speaker allowed the Q & A session in which our participants asked inquisitive questions to the speaker related to Sociology and Literature. Dr. Farooqui made that session very interesting by responding to all those questions eloquently and encouraging them to contribute to the contemporary research on Sociology of Literature. The program was conducted by Stream Yard and went YouTube Live on the Departmental YouTube Channel. The program was hosted and moderated by Dr. Archana Pande, Assistant Professor, Humanities & Social Sciences. The other faculty particularly Dr. Vandana Mishra, Dr. Jawed Akhatar & Dr. Faizan Haque provided essential input to make this program successful.

The program was concluded with a vote of thanks delivered by Dr. Vandana Mishra.
